Miss Catherine Kendrick Dead—Paul
Thurston Touring England and France—
—Fire in the Edwards House—Ira C.
Jordan Dead at Eighty-One.

On Thursday, the 8th, the remains of Miss Catherine Kendrick were brought to the present home of her son, Mr. Lehigh, with her sister, Miss Kendrick, and with her brother, Mr. Frank Kane, as the late Mr. and Mrs. Kane being a sister). Miss Kendrick was a teacher in Barre, Vt., and her husband was taken to the St. Johnsbury Hospital when he taken ill, and lived but a short time. Her brother was called from Livestock field, Me., but he passed away before he reached the hospital. A funeral service was held Saturday afternoon at the home of the Rev. S. T. Achenbach, pastor of the Congregational Church conducted in the service. The body was placed in the tomb, awaiting burial in the family lot in Litchfield, where their home was. It is particularly sad, as her mother, Mrs. Kendrick, and sister, Miss Kendrick, are very young. The neighbors and friends and community at large expressed deep sympathy to the family in their great loss. Of close relatives, who have known her mother, Miss Kendrick, are her mother, Miss Kate Howe, and other relatives and hosts of friends. Miss Kendrick was an efficient and valued teacher in the school at Barre, Vt., and was on a six weeks' trip to England, and intends to visit France before returning.

Tuesday, the 6th, John Harrington discovered that F. L. Edwards' house was on fire and flames were bursting through the roof near the chimney. The fire department quickly responded to the alarm and so prevented a total loss of the building. The flames were badly damaged by the fire. The rooms were subdued so quickly that the family are able to remain and escape at their leisure.

Friday (Smith) Cunningham, Gorham, N. H., spent Saturday here visiting her brother, Dr. R. Smith, and wife and aunt, Mrs. A. E. K. Grover.

Saturday, the 7th, Mrs. M. and Mr. H. Thurston, is ill with measles.

Mrs. Gertie Haggood's children are ill with measles. Mrs. Haggood is able to be up and about.

Advertiser's call for original stories published from week to week. It protects the cooperation and the place in making the Advertiser a real and a clean-cut family weekly.

We need more stories. They refer to hunting, fishing or sports. A vacation, a picnic or a sea camp might suggest abundant material of interest to all. Happenings on the factory, or at school would be delightful reading. Close observation of "types" found where crowds should provide characters for stories in fiction. Old landmarks might furnish family associations and historical facts to preserve in print.

History of paths of travel, and the facts that make us pause in the road look backward for a time.

Send in your copy. Please give name and give address. The Advertiser publishes what is desired, and therefore to publicly acknowledge the authorship of a story as a matter of style and general interest.

UNFAIR TO THE WOMEN

Within a decade, electric sewing machines, ironing machines, heaters, mixing devices, refrigerators, and similar power appliances will be a part of a house as the modern room, is the prediction of Earle E. White, Editor of Electrical World and home, while the modern office is still far from having devices for all the work of the home as it is for the office. The appliances are thus provided. The women are required to do the same as the drudgery their grandmothers did, because the home is away behind the scenes of the development of the new power companies, which are owned by public ownership, will bring at

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 69

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white squares this puzzle will work both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white squares up to the first black square to the right. A number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares, to the next black one below. No letters go in the black squares. All words used are dictionary words, except proper nouns, abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

American Forest Week

In accordance with the proclamation by President Coolidge, designating the period of April 18 to 24 as American Forest Week, the State of Maine Forest Service is offering $300 in cash prizes for the best essays on "The Forest of Maine: Its Protection and Conservation." In offering these prizes, it is hoped that a greater interest will be stimulated in the minds of the school children as to the great value of our forests and that some thought will be given to the need of protecting and conserving this resource.

The contest will be open to all high school and grammar school children in the state. The essays will be judged for the presentation of original ideas and clearness of expression. The maximum length of the essays shall be seven hundred words.

The local supervisor will select the best paper from both the high schools and grammar schools under their supervision. These will be sent to the county committee who will act as judges for the contest. Ten dollars will be awarded to the high school student in each county presenting the best essay and five dollars for the winning grammar school essay.

The winning essays of each county will then be judged by a State committee and the following awards made: Twenty dollars and ten dollars to the high school student presenting respectively the best and second best essays. Fifteen dollars and ten dollars to the grammar school student presenting the first and second best essays.

Essays should be carefully written with either ink or typewriter and written only on one side of the sheet of paper.

The name should not be placed on the winning essay, but instead a number. With the essay should be attached an envelope with the corresponding number on the outside and the name and address of the writer written.

A pamphlet containing forest facts about Maine forests and their protection is being issued by the Maine Forest Service and copies will be furnished to all the schools by their superintendents.

Old Man's Business Sermon

Set in by a subscriber who wants to see it in print. The two villages are a good way from West Paris and it does not apply here, however, we give it space.

A business man of the home of clothes, plus, skin and snow-shoes has this to say to our reporter:

"I try to conduct my business on the theory that almost all people are honest and of course I won't hire anyone who is not honest. The word 'honesty' is stretched to a certain extent by most every employer I employ, I feel sure my help wouldn't steal a cent from me—in this respect, however, and can be and is, I believe, like every other man who employs a force of men and women, who think nothing of stealing time from me. In observing my help and that of others I cannot help but seeing the evil helpers who do fancy work in the store or office where they are employed. I have seen some of these girls rush madly through the work, sighting it, making mistakes, doing as little as possible, in order to get through the work they are paid to do, so they can do fancy work or something similar."

"I knew a man who was wrapped up in his work and spent every minute he could steal from his employer on this diameter of work, and I have known of Sunday school teachers and workers who took the time of their boss to study their lessons or to prepare a sermon."

"There are the young men and the young women who dance most of the night and are asleep on their feet the next day. These helpers say nothing, do nothing and do nothing unless produced to action by a customer. They make mistakes, they are careless, they are slow, their faces are as blank as a billiard ball. They are stealing from their employer almost as much as the clerk who takes the till and takes cash from it."

"There is the helper who reads books, novels, newspapers on the time of the boss, and the helper who participates in outside activities that take up his or her time to the detriment of his or her ability to deliver the goods for which the boss pays."

"I once had a helper who took part in everything from school entertainments, social affairs, lodge meetings and church work, and there were more telephone calls for this helper than for my place of business, and I finally decided I wasn't hiring a clerk, I was simply paying a salary for a public utility."

"I have seen young men who consumed at least an hour of every day rolling cigarettes and lighting them, and have seen young women wasting equally as much time polishing their finger nails and frowning their noses."

"I know of stores where the goods on the shelves are dusty and poorly displayed, because the clerks were too indolent or too busy with their own affairs to do anything more than the boss pointed out for them to do."

"It rubs me the wrong way to have to keep pointing out to my helper that needs to be done, to my employees, who should see it and do it without being told."

"I could show you twenty typewriting machines in town that are dirty, greasy and gummed up, which would be spick span and neat if the girls operating them would spend as much time on the machines as I finally decided I wasn't hiring a clerk, I was simply paying a salary for a public utility."

"I can show you display windows that would never be changed if the boss of the store didn't order the change made. This is because the clerks in these stores are stealing the time of their boss by talking when they should be working and not trying to realize that as long as they draw a salary from an employer they should, so far as possible, give their employer every minute of their time during working hours."

"I know clerks apparently think it a crime to appear for work before the minute the clock hands point to the hour. They are surprised to start work on and on almost if they have to work a few minutes over-time, but these same clerks will step out and start for home at a near by fountain, slip away for a few minutes to buy meat, groceries or meet a minor engagement and report for work a few minutes later, or start for home a few minutes early and yet they never think it is dishonest for them to use the time of their employer and never attempt to repay it."

My Critic Subsidies

I laughed heartily several times while my critic's "finale" in last week's Advertiser was being read to me. His claim of a victory in the discussion was ludicrous in the extreme. It reminded me of rooster fights while a boy on the farm, where one of them getting the worst of it would fall out and when from a distance sufficiently safe from bringing on a renewal of the same would crow lustily. This was no doubt a claim of victory.

The cold fact is that he has been beaten at every point. His authorities were largely of the homemade variety—assertions of his own, contradicting, accepted by scholars and educators, and properly classed with "chimney corner" law. He has gone into the same hole he first came out without gaining any laurels.

I claimed my right to the last word chiefly to bring the discussion, which had become very distasteful from the present condition of my health and the manner of my critic's methods to run into side issues, to an end. It seems to have accomplished its purpose.

My authorities cited were of the very best and sustained me on every proposition. That of Senator Thomas H. Benton, particularly so. He served in the U. S. Senate with Clay and Webster. He personally knew Jefferson, Madison and Republican party. He was Gen. Andrew Jackson's champion, during his administration, and for many years the great Democratic leader in the Senate. He wrote "Thirty Years in the U. S. Senate" and an "Abridgement of Debates in Congress from 1789 to 1850." What better authority could possibly be cited? None of the facts and events stated by him have ever been questioned down to my critic's entry into this controversy. I had thought to put in a little sarcasm here, but I forbore.

I am so gratified at the outcome of this profligate discussion, relieving me from having authorities looked up for me and the perplexity of writing and replying to my critic that I have determined to make no contrast of Daniel Webster with one of his nonentities.

I will leave that to sleep the sleep of forgetfulness, but will say of my fifth Great American that Ellis, the historian, has called him the greatest orator who ever spoke the English language and for this name will be perpetual as long as the language endures. And as being the founder of the U. S. Constitution, will live in the history of our country to the remotest ages. No one is entitled to displace him in the list of the Seven Greatest Americans.—C. F. Whitman.

KILLING THE FARMER'S FRIEND

When a farmer complained that the pheasants were eating his corn, the game department killed two of the birds, examined their crops, and found 200 cut worms—and no corn. Almost without exception, when the scientists investigate such cases they find the same result. The farmer owes his crop to the feathered police that keep down the bugs, insects and worms.

With continuing slaughter of every form of bird life, the insect life will be heavier and farm work harder. The nation could train an army of riflemen in a comparatively short time, but it couldn't in a century restore the bird armies that are the farmers' allies in raising food to feed the country.

AMERICAN HOMES STANDARD OF COMFORT

It has been said that the United States has no distinctive type of art, literature, architecture and other things which the old world claims as its own. We will not argue this question but we would like to point out a step in progress toward a distinctive human comfort which is distinctly American, namely, the use of electrical conveniences.

What American would want to live in the average European dwelling or farm house? Even the hotels, except the more expensive ones, have few or none of the conveniences or luxuries which in the country are considered necessities in the developed a distinctive national type of architecture in the United States, we have developed a standard of house comfort which will be referred to in history as the "electrical home" period.

Don't be a chronic critic. Criticism has its place in conversation but it should not be all of it.

NORTH BRIDGTON

Bridgton Academy

The Bridgton Academy Track Manager or has completed negotiations with the faculty manager of the University of Maine for a dual track meet to be held at Orono on Saturday, April 24th. This meet is to be run in conjunction with the New Hampshire University of Maine dual meet held the same afternoon. The Bridgton lads will be obliged to confine the greater part of their training to the board running track, the gymnasium and the baseball cage. It is hoped that by the first of next week the weight men can get out somewhat. In a relay race at Orono, when the new building was dedicated, the Bridgton relay quartet took the University of Maine Freshmen into camp but the coach Sampson's team is not so well balanced as in former years, they are looking for a hard meet and having only two weeks to get into the condition much work is ahead of them. This meet is the opening of a long, hard schedule for the Bridgton Academy spike shoes men, with a meet each week.

Bridgton Academy with the longest and hardest schedule of baseball in the history of the school is facing a terrible handicap this spring as the Chadbourne Athletic Field is covered with a deep layer of snow and ice and it will be several weeks before the team can practice on the diamond, although they will get out for a little light work before that date. The first home game is scheduled for April 24th, but it will no doubt have to be postponed. The boys are anxious to get out and get going and since the opening of school for the spring term, the weather has been such the men have been unable to get out on the board track where they limber up. Coach Small is confining all of his work to the Ingalls' gymnasium and the new baseball cage in the basement of the chapel. Last year at this time the students were playing tennis on the courts and baseball was going along in fine shape. However, the Bridgton men are hoping for the best and are picking up a few points under their able mentor, Asa Small, who is well known throughout the State for his summer baseball, playing last summer in Portland.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 18

THE BEGINNING OF SIN

GOLDEN TEXT—For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.—1 Cor. 15:22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Adam and Eve Disobey God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Result of Disobedience.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Playing With Temptation.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Temptation and the Fall.

A look upon the world proves that man is now what he should be. It is not reasonable to suppose that man is now what he was when he came from the hands of the Creator, much less an improvement. The only way of accounting for this is by the historic fall of man as given in the Bible. The introduction of sin is the only answer.

1. Man's Probation (vv. 1-5).

1. The place.

It was the beautiful garden of Eden. Man's environment was suited to his nature. The testing of the second Adam was quite in contrast. Instead of in the garden of Eden with a companion suited to him, it was in the wilderness with the wild beasts.

2. The necessity.

Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. This he could get only through testing. Alternative choice makes character possible. Free will is what made Adam a real man. Character is the resultant of choice.

3. The means.

It was most simple—just one prohibition. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil was forbidden.

4. The method.

Satan, a personal malicious being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. He did not appeal directly to the man. He chose to appeal to the woman through the serpent and through the woman to the man.

a. He found the woman while alone.

b. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind as to God's Word and love. Satan's method is the same today. He tries to get people to doubt God's Word and thus to doubt His love.

c. He appealed to innocent appetite. He argued that there would be no harm in eating, but a great advantage. d. Eve gazed upon that which God had forbidden and lusted after that which God had prohibited.

11. Man's Fall (vv. 6-8).

The steps in the fall seem to have been rapid. From doubting God's love Eve went to doubting His word. From gazing upon and lusting after that which God had prohibited there was but a short step to indulgence.

III. The Consequences of the Fall (vv. 9-24).

God's holy nature is such that when man sin, He at once manifests Himself on the scene.

1. A disturbed relationship with God (v. 8).

The introduction of sin marred man's familiar intercourse with the Almighty. Adam and Eve not only hid from God's presence, but when summoned by Him then began to make excuse, and Adam even laid the blame on God.

2. The degradation of the serpent henceforth becoming the type of sin and Satan (v. 14; cf. Num. 21:9; John 8:44 and Rev. 12:9).

Satan's doom was pronounced with trial. In the case of the man it was not so, showing that this was not Satan's first offense.

3. The undying enmity between the seed of woman and the seed of the serpent (v. 15).

This bitter enmity has continued from that day to this.

4. The ultimate victory of the woman's seed (v. 15).

Satan harassed the woman's seed, but on the cross the final stroke was made when he crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; 1 John 3:8).

5. The judgment upon the woman (v. 16).

This relates primarily to her as a wife and mother.

6. Man's new relationship to the earth (vv. 17-19).

The earth was cursed on his account. Man must make an increased effort to exist. With his sinful nature, man would be in a bad state without the necessity of toil.

7. Death (v. 20).

This includes spiritual and physical death. Sin brought all.

8. Expulsion from the garden (v. 24).

Then man's nature was changed, out from the beautiful garden he went.

Being Content

And we shall be made truly wise if we're made content; content, too, not only with what we can understand, but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call, and rightly, faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

Personal Immortality

Without a belief in personal immortality religion is like an arch resting on one pillar or like a bridge ending in an abyss.

WOODSTOCK

Location of Veterans' Graves

To the Editor: Daughters of Veterans of Bryant Pond desire to locate graves of all veterans in Woodstock. They propose to erect for each soldier a marker and make a permanent record to be preserved for all time.

We know of the difficulty of the Daughters of American Revolution in locating the graves of Revolutionary soldiers. Their experience warns us now to locate and preserve a record of the graves of our veterans or some will soon be forever lost.

Will relatives and friends of such veterans with knowledge of their graves, at once write this information to the secretary of Daughters of American Veterans, Bryant Pond, Maine.—Marion Hodgson.

SUNSET AT LITTLE CONCORD POND

Come sit here with me on this huge boulder. This picture now seems charming to behold. The sun is at the head of this crystal sea. A scene which none but the Creator could make. The lake's high notes so clearly fall.

The setting sun with its golden beams, Rests lightly here in this place of dreams. With none to admire the splendor and mood. The wind does bloom, their heads they toss. Heaven's peace in here with you and me. As o'er this pure water we look and gaze. At the changing colors of the slanting rays. Which blends with the sunset in such pure air. Reddations of light these sunbeams share. Somewhere down the shore the whirr-whip whistles.

His sharp notes in the stillness rings. In the forest just back among the tall trees. The oriole sings his high mellowed note. The whistler sings his high mellowed note. The gleam of the water lilies and lilies; Of youthful tramps joyous and carefree; I wandered through the woods awhile. With not a sorrow my heart to beguile.

See these tall cliffs as they rise from the feet. Their tops and the sky seem there to meet. The gleam of the water lilies and lilies; Of youthful tramps joyous and carefree; I wandered through the woods awhile. With not a sorrow my heart to beguile.

At some early epoch of volcanic time. Upheavals took place in this now pleasant clime. The rocks were hurled from the mountain's side. And glory and fame to our own native land. What more enchanting could God unfold? Than this happy view you now behold.

—By Eugene H. Andrews, M. D.

The famous Glenwood "C" Range in 3 different styles for your convenience

THE "C" model coal range typifies the truth of the phrase "Glenwood Ranges Make Cooking Easy" to more housewives than perhaps any other range we have ever made.

It's one of those comfortable-looking, "homey" Glenwoods with plenty of cooking space on the top, plenty of room in the oven, and with either the standard black and nickel finish or the new gray porcelain enamel that wipes clean so easily.

For the convenience of those who have asked for a special hot water reservoir and those who want a gas range attachment, this popular range is now made in these three different styles.

The reservoir attachment will heat water quickly and keep several gallons hot as long as there is a fire in the grate. The gas section adds a gas oven, broiler and 3 top burners.

Talk With a Norway

Man

Dr. Sampson Tells Something of Interest to Norway Folks

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk by Mr. Sampson, of 19 Bridge St., would be mighty helpful here in Norway. Dr. M. W. Sampson, Prop., of the transportation company, 10 Bridge Street, Northington, says: "A severe cold settled in my chest and brought on attacks of backache. I was lame and unable to move. The pain in my back was so severe. I had dizzy spells and my kidneys didn't work right, either. After using three boxes of Doan's Pills, the trouble left me." The above statement was given Sept. 19, 1920, and on July 14, 1925, Mr. Sampson said, "The cure Doan's Pills gave me has lasted."

The Ladies' Circle of the Congregational Church served a supper in the vestry, Thursday evening, to a large patronage. After this, The Village Postoffice was presented with some twenty men, women and children taking part.

A large crowd attended the dance at Grange Hall last Saturday evening and everybody had a good time. The lucky number dance will be featured, with Shaw's Orchestra playing the latest hits at the dance there Saturday evening, April 17.

Services at the Congregational Church last Sunday morning commenced at a quarter to eleven, some minutes later than the usual hour, to accommodate the speaker, Rev. O. H. Tracy, D. D., who supplied for his son, Rev. O. B. Tracy, at an early service at Norway. Services next Sunday will commence at 10:45, or fifteen minutes later than the usual time.

The title of her story is "Meat." No comment was made on its merits, as this is left to a committee of judges composed of prominent home economics authorities.

Miss Kilpelainen is one of 146 girls competing in Maine. More than 10,000 girls are enrolled in the United States as a whole. The major prizes at state and university scholarships, and there are other prizes of cash, all totaling approximately $2,140. Winners will be announced about June 1, it is said.

BATES—WEST PARIS
High School Annual Fair—Charles E. Hammond Dead—Mrs. Emery III.

The high school will hold their annual fair at the Grange Hall, April 13. Supper will be served at 5:30, having a workman's table. The Junior drama entitled "Constantine Pueblo Jones" will follow in the evening with the following characters: Mrs. Huckleby, proprietress of Sunny Lake Restaurant; Edna Richardson, Walter Huckleby, her son; Ruby Chandler, only a tramp; Raymond Dean, Mr. Jones' lawyer; Ralph Smith, Louise Jones' niece; Martha Day, Edna's friend; Mary Swan, Mary's friend; Phemie Ross, William Jones' wife; Robert Perkins, Tom Westover; Thomas Perkins, Dick Westover; Luwood Curtis, Harry Westover; Penfold, a famous detective; Ellis Ellingwood, Whiskey, his colleague; Helen Charles Elmer Hammond, who was stricken with paralysis sixteen years ago, suffered a second attack last week and died Monday. He was born in Paris, Aug. 4, 1874. His parents were Peleg B. and Hannah A. Dunham Hammond. His father died when he was a small boy. Later his mother married a Mr. Kenney and she died Aug. 24, 1913. Mr. Hammond began working for the Grand Trunk R. R. Co., when about fifteen years of age, here in the station, and worked himself up to an efficient telegraph operator and general office work. He was working at Berlin, N. H., assistant clerk of the G. T. R. R. station there when he married for his first wife Mary Derby of Vermont, who lived one short year afterward. Later he married Inez Briggs of West Paris. Before they had fairly settled in their home in Berlin, N. H., he was taken sick with his first stroke from which he never rallied enough to do any more work and has been more or less helpless ever since. They lived part of the time with his mother in Stratford, N. H., and several years in her house at Trent Corner, then went to Bryant's Pond with her sister, Mrs. N. I. Swan, and where she was taken sick and went to the hospital for an operation, died Feb. 24, 1922, in May of the same year; four years ago he came to his uncle's home, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Dunham where he has been tenderly cared for until his death. It has been pitiful to see him walking about the streets in the summer time in his lame condition and a mind so dulled by paralysis that he could not fully express his ideas or wants when he had been such a bright, smart young man. The railroad company and employees never forgot him and he received many favors from them. The funeral was held in the Baptist church Thursday at 2 p. m., Rev. E. H. Stover officiating. There were beautiful flowers.

Mrs. Mary Emery, wife of Elisha Emery, had a slight attack of paralysis, Tuesday afternoon so that she had to take her bed for a while.

EAST OTISFIELD
Chester Lamb Bought Lunt Place—Obituary of Mrs. Hester Hill.

Chester Lamb has bought the Lunt place on Scribner Hill.

Mrs. Henry Kug and daughter, Annie, returned home last Saturday from a week's visit with her mother at West Bethel Flat, who recently fell and sustained injuries.

Mrs. Hester (Knight) Hill died March 26, quite suddenly, being in her usual health excepting a heavy cold, which she had suffered with several days, but was around the house on the day of her death which occurred about 6 o'clock p. m. of heart failure. She was born May 13, 1848, the daughter of Benjamin and Phoebe (Hall) Knight. She was a member of the Congregational Church on Bell

Hill and after the church services were moved to Spurr's Corner she was a constant attendant to the Free Baptist Church nearby her home, as long as health would permit. She was the last of the family of seven children. A brother, Joseph Knight, of Portland, was buried from this home on Feb. 11. About two weeks after his death his widow died in Portland, making three of this family who have passed on to their eternal home in six weeks. Mrs. Hill was very devoted to her home and family, always thinking and caring for others, helping in the household work to the last day of life. She was very anxious that Mrs. Arthur Peaco be sent for which was immediately done, she arriving late Thursday evening, and Mrs. Hill lived until Friday at 6 p. m. Pneumonia developed and her heart being very weak, she could not rally. She leaves a daughter and her husband, a grandson, with whom she has made her home, also a nephew, Bertie Bowker, and other distant relatives. Funeral services were held on March 29, conducted by Rev. O. B. Tracy of Norway. The flowers were beautiful. Interment was in the family lot in Elmwood cemetery. The
